Grade 5

Week of February 6th – February 12th

Because of our snow days, we slowed down a bit with our new chapter. We have completed all the new skills for multiplying decimals and are now learning the skills for dividing decimals by decimals. Study guides will be distributed this week for our test on Friday, February 15th. We will spend next week reviewing and practicing the skills we have learned. Studying/reviewing the math notebook each night is a great way to keep all the skills and concepts sharp! We will have our next fast facts test this Friday. There has been improvement in most students but if your child didn't complete the test in the 4 minutes, that means they need to be practicing their facts. It is so important that they can easily recite their facts! All math comes back to those facts!!! You can easily google "100 multiplication math facts” and have your child practiceand practice.....and practice until they improve their time. They can do it!!!

A little math humor.....
